

PREACHING TO ENEMIES
DEVOTIONAL READING: Jonah 2
BACKGROUND SCRIPTURE: Jonah 3

JONAH 3

- 1 And the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying,
- 2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee.
- 3 So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceeding great city of three days' journey.
- 4 And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey, and he cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.
- 5 So the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.
- 6 For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.
- 7 And he caused it to be proclaimed and published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water:
- 8 But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God: yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands.
- 9 Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?
- 10 And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them; and he did it not.

God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them; and he did it not. —Jonah 3:10

PROPHETS FAITHFUL TO GOD'S COVENANT Unit 3: Courageous Prophets of Change LESSONS 9–13

LESSON AIMS

After participating in this lesson, each learner will be able to:

1. Define “repentance.”
2. List reasons why the Ninevites’ reaction to Jonah’s proclamation was unexpected.
3. Commit to one needed change to obey God more fully.

Introduction

A. A Satisfying End

Imagine that you are nearing the end of a book you just can't put down. You anticipate a satisfying ending. But the book actually ends by telling you that the whole thing had been a dream. What? Why was I so invested in this? That's unfair! Few things are more frustrating to a reader than an unsatisfying ending to an otherwise excellent book.

Or what if the book ended in the middle of a sentence and offered no resolution to any of the conflicts contained within it? What makes a really atrocious ending to a book is when that ending has nothing to do with the book itself, or it explains away the drama of the book in a ridiculous manner, or it fails to actually end up somewhere. Such endings make an entire read feel like a waste of time because nothing that happened actually mattered.

All Jonah wanted was an ending that made sense to him regarding the story of the Ninevites. They deserved to be destroyed. They had done nothing to merit a happy ending. Everyone for miles around could see that they should be destroyed. But how would God write the ending of this drama?

B. Lesson Context

Though the book of Jonah is only four chapters long, it has much to teach us about the character of God. But the book reveals Jonah's character as well. He reacted to his call like no other prophet in the Old Testament. Those prophets consented to speak for God even when they would rather not (Exodus 4:10–12; Jeremiah 1:6–9; etc.). Jonah chose not only to keep his mouth closed but also to try to run away from God (Jonah 1:1–3).

Jonah appeared to have been willing to live in self-imposed exile rather than deliver a message of repentance to wicked Nineveh, an important city of the aggressive Assyrian Empire. In this way, Jonah held a mirror up to Israel, a nation that would prefer to believe that God's choosing them meant He cared about them exclusively. Perhaps Jonah and his fellow Israelites needed to read the “all the nations of the earth” part of Genesis 18:18; 22:18; and 26:4 again!

Even so, Israel had good reason to desire God's sole protection. Assyria was a powerful, expansive nation when Jonah received his call from God in about 780 BC. (See the Lesson Context of lesson 10.) The city of Nineveh, to which Jonah was called, was a royal residence for the king of Assyria. The city was massive (see Jonah 3:3, below) and had a reputation for violence and cruelty (see 3:8, below). Jonah was not someone who had fallen into provincial small-mindedness. His nation—in fact the known world—would be safer if the barbarous Assyrians were destroyed.

Ultimately, Israel's fear of Assyria was justified. Assyria invaded the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 BC, plundered it, carried people into captivity, and resettled the territory (2 Kings 17). While history doesn't provide detailed accounts of the Assyrian invasion, we have no reason to believe that the aggressors didn't commit atrocities on the northern kingdom of Israel as done elsewhere.

That was after Jonah's time. Even so, he certainly preferred to avoid his assigned task entirely. In addition to his escape attempt (Jonah 1:3), Jonah later revealed his deep disappointment in God (4:1–3). However, God insisted that Jonah fulfill his prophetic tasks. Even Jonah didn't dare try to escape God's calling a second time.

I. The Word of the Lord

(JONAH 3:1–4)

A. Repeated (vv. 1–2)

1. And the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying.

Jonah would not be relying on his own counsel when on his mission (see Lesson Context). He was the chosen messenger of, for, and by the Lord. Jonah is designated as a prophet in 2 Kings 14:25, and the formula in the verse before us is associated with other prophets (examples: Jeremiah 1:1–2; Hosea 1:1). Jonah's prior disobedience had not disqualified or exempted him from being God's chosen vessel (see Jonah 1:3).

2. Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee.

This command repeats what God originally told Jonah. Noticeably missing is the previous emphasis on the city's evil, seen in the phrase “their wickedness is come up before me” (Jonah 1:2). The prophet was already aware of that fact, but didn't see the remedy as God saw it. Jonah's desired remedy was fiery judgment; God's remedy was repentance (see 4:1–2, not in our lesson text). Preach unto it the preaching is another way to command Jonah to speak only what God would tell him. Jonah's marching orders had not changed.

We wonder why would God send an Israelite prophet to a nation that threatened His chosen people. The answer is found in the last verse in the book:

Should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than six score thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand? (Jonah 4:11)

In other words, God's love is not determined or constrained by national boundaries. We live in a world in which nationalism is on the rise—and so it has always been. Exceptionalism, a cousin of nationalism, is the belief that a certain society is superior to all others. Ancient Israel had nationalistic and exceptionalistic pride due to the fact that they were chosen by God uniquely (compare Deuteronomy 9:4; Matthew 3:9). It's not hard to see that trait in Jonah himself when we read the entirety of the book.

What Do You Think?

How should the designation of Nineveh as a “great city” inform our missionary endeavors today, if at all? Why?

Digging Deeper

What conclusions should we not draw? Why?

B. Revealed (vv. 3–4)

3. So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceeding great city of three days' journey.

His time inside the great fish had taught Jonah the price of disobedience (Jonah 1:17–2:10). Here we see the evidence of having learned that lesson. The three days' journey ironically matches Jonah's three days in the fish (Jonah 1:17).

One suggestion regarding the meaning of an exceeding great city of three days' journey is that it includes the time necessary for Jonah to stop and preach neighborhood by neighborhood. Archaeology has determined the size of Nineveh to have encompassed some 1,730 acres. Combining this with the population figure we see in Jonah 4:11 gives us a hint of the strength of the Assyrian Empire.

4. And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey, and he cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

Jonah walked one-third of the way into the city before delivering God's message. Given his lack of enthusiasm to this point, the prophet likely was giving God bare minimum obedience. We do much the same when we obey the letter of God's law but do not allow our hearts to be changed by His commands.

The recorded sermon is simple but powerful, just five words in the Hebrew. This could be all that Jonah said, or it could be a summary of a longer sermon. Lacking from the recorded text here is a call to repentance. This seems to be in keeping with Jonah's mind-set to this point: he seems not to have wanted to mention the possibility that God would forgive. After all, the Ninevites were an evil people who deserved judgment!

The number forty has symbolic meaning in the Bible. Rain fell for that number of days in judgment on wicked humanity (Genesis 7:17). Forty was the number of years the Israelites wandered in the desert because of their faithlessness (Numbers 14:33–35). It was the number of days Jesus fasted before facing the tempter (Matthew 4:2–10). In each case, God considered the completion of this number of days or years to be sufficient to excise evil or prove its absence. Nineveh's having that amount of time before being overthrown was nothing more than fair in God's reckoning.

WHOM TO EXCLUDE?

John grew up in church, where he learned to love his neighbors and extend grace. But he also learned to stay away from people who drank, smoked, gambled, and, well, sinned (per his definition). He grew to believe that people who had not repented should feel the full impact of those sins. That would be the best way for them to learn the errors of their ways.

John shared Jonah's mind-set. When we are challenged because of whom God shows grace, we must follow His leading rather than relying on our perception of what is "fair." We have all sinned (Romans 3:23).

Having received God's grace—and remembering that grace by its nature isn't "fair"—who are we to decide those to be excluded from experiencing it as well?

—L. M-W.

II. The People of Nineveh (JONAH 3:5–10) A. Repenting (vv. 5–8)

5a. So the people of Nineveh believed God.

Several startling events are recorded in the book of Jonah, but one of the greatest is the tremendous response to Jonah's pointed message. The faith of the people depended not on Jonah's rhetoric or enthusiasm for the subject (see Jonah 3:4, above). Instead their reaction speaks to the work of the Spirit of God in their midst, although not specifically stated as such.

The Ninevites, of course, had their own gods. Nineveh was home to the temple of Ishtar, goddess of love and war. Ashur, from which Assyria got its name, was both a city and a god. Other gods of Assyrian or Babylonian invention were also worshipped in Nineveh. But at this point the people believed God, the underlying Hebrew of that designation being Elohim, not Yahweh (see notes on these names in lesson 12, page 325). When the word Elohim is used without the word Yahweh being adjacent, the implication is that of the Creator of the universe (Genesis 1).

Of course, the Lord is both Creator of everything in the earth and Ruler over Israel specifically. Old Testament texts, especially the Psalms, often use the names interchangeably. But the Ninevites' belief seems to have been tied only to God as He makes himself known through creation (see Romans 1:18–20), rather than to God as He reveals himself more fully in the Law of Moses.

5b. And proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.

Fasting from food or drink was a common religious practice in many nations during biblical times. It could be practiced privately or corporately. The practice indicated self-denial, repentance, and/or humility. In the case of the Ninevites' fasting, all of these applied. Sackcloth was a rough material that was generally made from goat hair; wearing sackcloth signified submission (example: 1 Kings 20:31–32) or intense distress (example: 2 Kings 19:1). Fasting combined with wearing sackcloth added intensity to the picture (compare Psalm 35:13). A spiritual change was happening throughout that city!

What Do You Think?

On what occasions should fasting be promoted today, if any? Why do you say that?

Digging Deeper

Should Acts 13:2–3; 14:23 be foundational for your answer? Why, or why not?

6. For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

The phrase for word came is similar to that used to describe God’s revelation to Jonah (Jonah 1:1; 3:1). This implies that a true word from God made it to the king of Nineveh. But unlike Jonah, the king didn’t attempt to flee from God. Instead, he humbled himself and exchanged his royal robes for the coarse clothing of the penitent masses. His sitting in ashes may have been a sign that the king took additional responsibility for the cities he had destroyed by fire (compare Jeremiah 31:40).

Critics have questioned the accuracy of this account by charging that a king would not have lived in Nineveh during Jonah’s day because the city did not become Assyria’s capital until later. But Nineveh was a major city in the nation, and kings did reside there occasionally. Further, the hectic conditions in Assyria at the time may have caused some provincial leaders to assume titles of royalty (compare the various “king of ...” designations in Joshua 10:3).

Visual for Lessons 6 & 13. While discussing the questions associated with verse 5b, ask the class how fasting can be evidence of turning from evil.

Here we see a pagan monarch responding to God in a more obedient fashion than God's own prophet! This upended expectations about who responds to God appropriately. The Assyrians in Nineveh responded in submissive humility while the prophet from Israel had done the opposite. Righteous reactions from outsiders are seen in such important later events as the Magi's intent to worship the young Jesus (Matthew 2).

7–8a. And he caused it to be proclaimed and published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water: but let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God.

The king showed his support for the fasting initiative not only by participating in it, but by intensifying its terms. The fast was originally limited to the citizens of Nineveh, but livestock were also to be denied food and water. To cover these animals in sackcloth was a symbol of the city's repentance. Though we often think of the consequences of sin being confined to humans, this verse underscores that the natural world also suffers because of sin (Romans 8:19–22). God's last recorded response to Jonah also reinforced the fact that God cares for all of His creation, not just the human parts (Jonah 4:10–11).

For the king to risk the health of the city's livestock by causing them to fast indicates that he believed that destruction was imminent. If God didn't see genuine repentance, the well-being of the livestock wouldn't matter anyway.

COVERING THE HATE

What do you feel strongly enough about to “wear” on your skin forever? Some people use tattoos to commemorate a beloved spouse, a dearly departed friend, or even Mom. Others have hobbies, symbols of their faith, or pictures of their BFF inked into their skin. Sadly, some choose symbols of hatred.

Not all who choose a tattoo that proclaims racial or ethnic hatred find those biases permanent, however. They repent of those attitudes and want the symbols of their former beliefs to disappear. For some, this may involve tattoo removal. For others, cover-ups are a popular option. For either, repentance can be an expensive process.

Either a cover-up or a removal is like wearing sackcloth — permanently. The message is the same: there is an inward change, seen now on the outside. Repentance requires a forever-removal. How is the Holy Spirit convicting you in that regard?

—J. A. K.

8b. Yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands.

The king seems to have recognized that empty ritual would yield no benefit (compare Isaiah 58:3–7). True repentance begins with the heart and is verified through righteous behavior. For that reason, the king commanded his people to reject their evil lifestyle. The word way refers to well-established patterns of sin, which must be forsaken (compare Jeremiah 25:5).

The violence of Assyria is seen in archaeological discoveries. Assyrian reliefs and written descriptions record atrocities committed against prisoners of war. These artifacts depict scenes of gruesome torture. Those not tortured to death were deported to Assyrian cities to work as slaves on building projects. The Assyrians indulged in these monstrous tactics to strike fear in the hearts of any nation who dared to oppose them. The city of Nineveh was called on to repent of a way of life built on such violence.

What Do You Think?

What are some godly ways to respond after suffering violence at the hands of another?

Digging Deeper

Categorize your answer in terms of thoughts, words, and actions.

B. Hoping (v. 9)

9. Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?

God did not need to repent as though He had done something wrong— He hadn’t done anything to Nineveh yet! Rather, the idea here is more of God’s changing His mind about something and then acting in accordance with that change of mind. Turn is a great image for this (compare Jeremiah 18:8; 26:3). A change of God’s mind would result in a change of His action. The king’s hope in this regard was not unfounded, but it also wasn’t assured. The people had been told they would perish. For God to follow through on His word to them would be just.

C. Spared (v. 10)

10. And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them; and he did it not.

As the king and the people hoped, God saw their repentance as demonstrated in their works. As in the previous verse, we see language of God’s repentance, and the explanation is the same. Of course, God does not do evil in a moral sense. The idea is to be understood in a physical sense of punishment. God does indeed visit judgment, sometimes in the form of destruction, on people in keeping with His just nature (example: Genesis 18:20–19:29).

This verse is one of the key passages in Jonah. It captures God’s forgiving nature (compare Jonah 4:2–3, 8–9). Here we see seeds of the gospel. Salvation is offered to all peoples — regardless of nation, language, or culture. The apostle Peter wrote that God was “not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance” (2 Peter 3:9). For God has always so loved the world (John 3:16).

The historical record tells us, however, that Nineveh’s repentance didn’t last. The prophet Nahum, who came along about 150 years after Jonah, catalogued specific sins of which Nineveh was guilty. These included violence, corruption, and idolatry (Nahum 3).

Nineveh suffered destruction in 612 BC. Before that, God used the Assyrian Empire as an instrument of His wrath against His rebellious and idolatrous covenant people. But Assyria went too far in this role and ended up on the receiving end of what they had inflicted on others (Isaiah 10:5–19).

What Do You Think?

What’s your main takeaway from today’s lesson regarding modern missionary endeavors?

Digging Deeper

How will you act on that takeaway for your church?

Conclusion

A. Grace Without Borders

Throughout Scripture, we witness time and time again that God loves mercy (Exodus 33:19). The story of Nineveh illustrates this in extreme fashion: the enemies of God’s own people were spared when they turned their hearts toward Him.

God’s intention for all humanity is to encounter His love and remain in it. The apostle Paul catalogued all of the forces incapable of separating God’s people from God’s love (Romans 8:38–39). No outside force can cause that separation. But we can voluntarily cause it ourselves by rejecting His will as we become as the Ninevites had been. When we do so, repentance is the cure, as the Ninevites discovered.

Today, we also should accept the reality that God’s work will not be limited by geopolitical lines. We see Jonah’s attitudes in both individuals and faith communities who fixate over which groups of sinners are too far beyond the reach of God’s love. Meanwhile, we are reminded that we have a Savior who dined with sinners (Luke 7:34) and reserved His fiercest anger for the self-congratulating Pharisees (11:39–52).

Our Lord intends to establish a new people, from every tribe and tongue (Revelation 7:9). God’s love will go everywhere. We can experience joy at the prospect, or we can resist this reality. Our attitude does not change what God will do for our enemies, but it will change how we react to His blessing those we would curse.

Think about it: if God was concerned for a petulant prophet and a morally bankrupt city, then His loving commitment to us will remain unshaken. We can celebrate that God is “a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness” (Jonah 4:2). And in the face of divine kindness, we, like the citizens and rulers of ancient Nineveh, can repent.

What Do You Think?

Which thought in today’s text do you have the hardest time coming to grips with? Why is that?

What extra effort will you expend to resolve this uncertainty?

B. Prayer

God, You disregard our borders and share Your love wherever You please. We praise You for this because we are dependent on Your mercy. In Jesus’ name we pray. Amen.

C. Thought to Remember

No human boundaries limit God’s grace.

INVOLEMENT LEARNING

Enhance your lesson with KJV Bible Student (from your curriculum supplier) and the reproducible activity page (at www.standardlesson.com or in the back of the KJV Standard Lesson Commentary Deluxe Edition).

Into the Lesson

Have the following phrase on the board as students arrive:

The most significant change I ever made was ...

Group learners into pairs to share completions of this phrase. After about five minutes, ask volunteers to share with the whole class. Possible questions to pose as they do: 1—Why were you willing to change? 2—Why is change difficult? 3—What’s a change you’ve resisted? 4—What does that experience tell you about leading others to change?

Make a transition by saying, “As you think about your experiences with change, you’ll be able to reflect on why today’s Bible story is so remarkable.”

Alternative. Distribute copies of the “What Does It Say?” exercise from the activity page, which you can download, for learners to complete in pairs as indicated.

Into the Word

Read the lesson text aloud. Then distribute handouts (you prepare) of two charts. Have the following four headings on the first chart: What Jonah Did / What the Ninevites Did / What the King of Nineveh Did / What God Did. Have the following three headings on the second chart: How Jonah Changed / How the Ninevites Changed / How God Changed.

Ask students to complete these charts by working together in groups of four to eight as they study today's text together. (Option. You may allow all the groups to work on both charts or you may ask half the groups to complete the first while the other half completes the second.) Regarding the How God Changed category, be ready to challenge learners to justify their response there in light of Malachi 3:6 and James 1:17.

Option. Distribute copies of the "Read All About It!" exercise from the activity page. Have learners work in groups to complete it as indicated. (Or divide your class into thirds to have two of the groups complete, one each, the two charts above while the third group completes the "Read All About It" exercise.)

After several minutes, allow groups to report back to the class. At an appropriate point, ask, "Which change in this story surprises you most, and why?":

A—Jonah's change of heart and willingness to preach?

B—The Ninevites' repentance and turn to God?

C—God's change of decision on destroying the Ninevites?

Into Life

Give two blank slips of paper to each class member. Ask them to write on one slip their completion of this statement, which you write on the board:

The world situation I most wish would change is ...

Inform students they should leave their slips anonymous because you will be reading them to the class. Collect slips after no more than one minute and do so. As you read them aloud, make special note of responses that are repeated or express similar thoughts. Discuss what will be required for the desired changes to happen. Remind participants that the only changes we can control are those we make in ourselves. Follow that by asking whether the situation in Nineveh would have changed if Jonah had not changed first. Challenge learners to think of the self-change they can make in anticipation of the change they want to see happen.

On the second slip, ask learners to write the name of someone who needs to turn to Christ. You will not collect these slips; instead, learners can keep them as prayer reminders in the coming week. Again challenge class members to consider changes they can and should make in themselves before expecting change in the people named.
